DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Applicant's election with traverse of invention I and, species 1 drawn to Figures 1-8 in the reply filed on 29 August 2005 is acknowledged. The traversal is on the ground(s) that the method and apparatus "overlap sufficiently" (Response & Arguments submitted 7/5/05) such that there is no substantial burden on the examiner. This is not found persuasive because the search of the method is not required for that of the apparatus, since the apparatus maybe used for materially different methods, therefore is it not necessary to detail the search to that particular method.

The requirement is still deemed proper and is therefore made FINAL.

3. Claims 4, 18-20 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b), as being drawn to a nonelected invention and species, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Applicant timely traversed the restriction (election) requirement in the reply filed on 29 August 2005.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

5. Claims 1-3, and 5-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Murray (USPN 5,846,168).

Art Unit: 3644

Murray discloses a wrist brace for assisting the user in gripping a pole-like object 118. Murray's brace comprises a forearm engaging section 24, and a forward hand engagement section 46. Hand interconnecting section 74 contacts forearm connecting portion, which is defined as the portion of section 24 that contacts section 74, in a manner that enables relative limited movement of the forearm engaging portion 24 and the hand engagement section in a side-to-side motion. Said side to side motion occurs about pivot 50, and axis 68 along movement 70.

Regarding claim 2 and 3, the main hand engagement portion is defined as section 96 and is positioned to engage at least a portion of the front palm of the user's hand.

Regarding claims 5-7, pivot member 50 serves to control limited side-to-side, rotational movement, along with the cooperation of the contact surfaces of sections 24 and 74.

Regarding claim 8, as seen in Figures 3 and 4, the contact surfaces of the forearm engaging portion 24 forms with the contact surfaces of the main hand engagement surface 96, to create a substantially longitudinal alignment.

Regarding claims 9 and 15, Murray's brace comprises a rod engaging portion, as viewed in Figures 5-8, defined as the inner portion of hand engagement section 46, which in the operating portion allows free movement of thumb 92, which is a finger, enabling the thumb to also retain the rod.

Regarding claims 10-12 and the above discussion of claim 9, as can be seen in Figure 4 the hand gripping surface 96 is contoured and curved to substantially match the front surface portion of the user's hand or a portion of the finger.

Art Unit: 3644

Regarding claims 13 and 14, the rod receiving portion is defined as the inner wall 144 of section 46, as is curved and wraps around rod 118. The rod 118 may move laterally into and out of 154 the recess.

Finally regarding claim 16, section 46 is made of aluminum or Kydex material, which while it is known to be relatively rigid, would provide a user a moderate degree of flexibility is a gripping force were applied on rod 118.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

7. Claim 17 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Murray as applied to claims 1 and 14 above.

Murray discloses the claimed invention except it is not positively disclosed that a material of high be disposed at the rod receiving surface to inhibit twisting of the rod while being gripped. Murray notes that plate forming the rod receiving portion may vary in some ways so long as it accommodates the fingers properly (col.4, ln.66 through col.5, ln.3). It would have been obvious use or add a high friction material to Murray's grip portion in order to allow the user to get a better grip on a pole, since it has been held to be within the general skill of a worker in the art to select a known material on the basis of its suitability for the intended use as a matter of obvious design choice. In re Leshin, 125 USPQ 416.
